Day 4 – Jun 6 : :Breakfast Morning at Leisure, afternoon tour of the green canals (khlongs) by long boats, Dinner at the local restaurant. (B/D)

Here's what you can expect when exploring the green khlongs of Thailand by longboat:

- Scenic beauty: The canals are often lined with lush greenery, providing a tranquil and picturesque setting for your journey. You might pass by traditional wooden stilt houses, vibrant riverside temples, and glimpses into the daily lives of local communities.
- Cultural immersion: Longboat tours offer a glimpse into the heart of Thai culture and river life. You can witness residents engaging in their routines along the canals, observe traditional architecture, and potentially even visit local markets accessible by boat.
- Variety of options: Different tours cater to various interests and budgets. Some focus on highlighting iconic landmarks like the Grand Palace and Wat Arun from a unique perspective. Others delve deeper into exploring hidden gems and local neighborhoods off the main tourist routes.
- Responsible tourism: Many tours, like those following the Amazing Green Route promoted by the Tourism Authority of Thailand (TAT), emphasize eco-friendly practices and encourage responsible travel. This may involve using clean vehicles, supporting communities committed to environmental conservation, and engaging in activities that promote cultural understanding and preservation of nature.
- Alternative explorations: Besides longboats, you might also find opportunities to explore the canals by other means, such as kayaking, which can provide a more active and intimate experience, according to All events.in.

In essence, a longboat trip through Thailand's green khlongs is more than just a boat ride; it's an opportunity to discover a different side of the country, experience local culture firsthand, and appreciate its commitment to preserving both its natural environment and traditional way of life.
